Prerequisites: _____

Poznavanje osnov mikroekonomije in makroekonomije.
Zadostna raven angleščine za branje literature v angleščini.

Fundamentals of microeconomics and macroeconomics.
Sufficient level of English language knowledge to study the listed literature in English.

Vsebina:

Vsebina predmeta Ekonomika javnega sektorja daje vpogled v osnove in najpomembnejše vsebine v javnem sektorju, kot so:

- temelji mikroekonomije (eksternalije, nepopolnosti trga, asimetrija informacij ipd),
- družbena blaginja,
- teorija javne izbire,
- področja javnega financiranja (zdravstvo, izobraževanje, znanost),
- socialna varnost,
- davki in obdavčenje,
- proračun in fiskalna politika.

Predmet daje osnovne teoretične podlage in je zasnovan na način, ki študentom omogoča prenos osnovnih teoretičnih spoznanj v prakso na izbranem področju preko študij primerov, simulacij ter ustrezno argumentirano diskusijo.

Predmet je sestavljen iz treh osnovnih delov: v prvem delu se ukvarjamо z vlogo države in javnih financ za gospodarski razvoj in obstoj družbe, v drugem se ukvarjamо s financiranjem in zbiranjem sredstev za financiranje javnega sektorja, v tretjem pa z javnimi izdatki, namenjeni za financiranje izvajanja javnih dejavnosti.

Struktura predmeta izhaja iz mikroekonomskih podlag, kjer se študenti seznanijo z osnovami, kot so javne dobrine, eksternalije, asimetrija informacij in nepopolna konkurenca. V tem kontekstu študenti spoznajo nepopolnost trga preko primerov in izkušenj. Po utemeljitvi nujnosti javnih dobrin in vlogi države v obstoju in funkciranju družbe, se v nadaljevanju predmet osredotoča na financiranje države ter njen odnos do javnih dobrin. Poseben poudarek je dan davkom in vplivom davkov na gospodarski razvoj. Content (Syllabus outline):

This course in Public Sector Economics provides an overview of the basic and most important topics, such as:

- Microeconomic foundations (externalities, failures of a competitive market, information asymmetry),
- Social welfare,
- Theory of public choice,
- Areas of public financing (health care, education, science),
- Social security,
- Taxation and taxes,
- Budget and fiscal policy.

The course provides the necessary theoretical foundations. It gives students the possibility to transfer the acquired knowledge into practice using case studies, simulations, and argumented class-based discussions.

The course can be divided into three parts: the first deals with the issue of why, from an economic viewpoint, we need state and public finances in our society. In the second part, we build on this and try to figure out how the government collects funds to finance its activities and programmes. The third part explains how the government allocates the collected funds.

The structure of the course is based on microeconomic foundations. The students familiarize themselves with the elementary definitions, such as public goods, externalities, information asymmetry, and imperfect competition. In this context, the students learn about market imperfections through cases and their own experiences. Following the arguments and reasons for the need for public goods and state, the course concentrates on financing and fund collection to finance the necessary goods. Taxation efficiency and social welfare are set as the main goals within this part of the course. The students explore various aspects of income, inequalities, wealth, and taxation. Special attention is given to the taxes and their impact on economic development. Taxation principles, taxation flows, and public finance systems are explored. The students study and present the chosen public budget (central budget, health care, and pension budget). The
